

Directors, Don't Get Disqualified

With an average of 1,600 directors prosecuted each year for failure to deliver accounts and returns on time – don't get caught out, B-Sec can take away the worry.

Compliance is a burden for any size of business but it matters too much to get things wrong. B-Sec on-line takes company secretarial services seriously and helps you perform your company secretary role.

Regional Law firm Brethertons LLP have launched the service aimed at company directors/secretaries, business owners and managers who carry out a company secretary role. B-Sec takes care of corporate governance requirements – enabling companies to focus on the growth and prosperity of their business.

B-Sec is a service to help manage the paperwork and processing of official company documentation with ease. The Brethertons system allows automatic filing of documents at Companies House, electronic recording and reviewing of statutory books and commercial documents and helps keep you on top of company secretarial administration.

Team Commercial partner, Brian Auld at Brethertons explains: "We are all extremely excited to launch the B-Sec service which is available to any local or national business as it is a web-based product. This is a further addition to our supply of on-line legal services and it will help save a lot of time and effort for anybody carrying out company secretary duties as they often struggle to keep up-to-date with their documentation and overall business compliance."

"As with our other web-based services the ability for clients to view their own records and documents on-line is extremely helpful, our charges are very reasonable and fixed and you don't have to be an existing client of Brethertons to use the B-Sec service.”

Brethertons is the highest ranked law firm in Banbury and Rugby and one of the UK's leading law firms in the Legal 500, an independent directory offering the definitive judgement of law firm capabilities. For further information on B-Sec please contact Brian Auld on 01295 270999.
